

Olympia Hills Golf Course

Olympia Hills is a Finger, Dye, Spann Design Group Layout. The 18-hole layout is owned and managed by the City of Universal City, Texas, making its debut in February of 2000.

The course features dramatic elevation changes on holes 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 11, and 13, dropping 50 feet or more from tee to green. "Olympia Hills will offer great golf, some breathtaking holes and an encounter with some of the largest, most picturesque live oaks in Bexar County", states Baxter Spann golf course architect.

The golf course features Bermuda grass and four sets of tees measuring 6,923 from the championship to 5,534 from the forward. The layout boasts naturally undulating topography, man-made mounds and strategic placement of bunkers, as well as native South Texas vegetation and wildlife that can be seen throughout.

Olympia Hills also offers one of the premiere practice centers in the area. The center includes a full length driving range with sculpted target greens and a 10,000 square foot short game area. This area is an outstanding place to practice the short game since it includes a putting green, chipping area and a practice sand bunker. Olympia Hills also offers private and group instruction by PGA golf professionals.
